Canadian Authors and Cookbooks Dinner Series

There is nothing as enjoyable as sitting down to dinner with a food author and hearing stories about writing cookbooks. Tickets are now on sale for three dinners to raise funds for the annual Canadian Culinary Book Awards, sponsored by the University of Guelph and Cuisine Canada.

The meals, to be held at Liaison College in Kitchener, will be prepared by expert chef instructors and their students and hosted by a Canadian food writer. The dates and guest authors are:

March 29, 2006: Margaret Howard, author of Choice Menus, Eat Well Live Well, and many other cookbooks.

April 26, 2006: Karen Bezeau, author of Home Cooking from Karen's Kitchen

May 24, 2006: Laura Elise Taylor, author of A taste for paprika

The authors will share their favourite food stories and the dinner menu will be made up of some of the authors' favourite recipes. At 5:30 p.m. the authors will meet with guests and dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $45 per person per meal. A special offer of $120 for three meals is available until March 24. Tax receipts will be issued if you purchase the 3 dinner series. Seating is limited so reserve your spot early!

Liaison College is located at 1780 King St. E., Kitchener. For more information and to order tickets, call Arlene Mahood at Liaison College, (519) 743-8335, email arlenemahood@bellnet.ca.
